A global race

I can imagine a Planet Earth
All multicultural, with one human race
A single race color, of café au lait
Putting the boot into prejudice today
No more persecuted refugees,
No more disenfranchised human beings,
I do dream big, can you see?
A global race free from prejudice intolerance, and bigotry.

Globalization

I see single communities becoming small towns of a global city
But short before now, the world is just a system of different geographies
I see all cultures beginning to envelope into same ideology
Imitation becoming a way of life
Zones of different regions becoming similar in operation
The same styles being exhibited in different distant corners International, that's the word to define our current way of life
Nations learning from nations to make the world
one large room.

Global truth

Somehow it seems that the people are lost,
In a world with internet and international posts.
Globalization has come here to be,
But what if it all leads to misery.
What if some nations have come together,
To decide for the future of all lands forever.
People are people, we need to understand,
That it is better to be in our land.
Then we'll be happy, then we'll be free,
Of unhappy faces and of misery.
So let us join hands. Let's fight for this cause.
It is a statement. And it is the truth.
Let's come together. Let's fight for our youth.
